Abstract

This handbook pairs processed food industries with their corresponding products. These pairings merge the domestic Standard Industrial Classification System (SIC) for classifying industries and the international Harmonized System for classifying imported and exported products. The result is a concise reference for use in analytical or statistical work that requires identification of the individual products that compose industries' aggregate processed food imports and exports.

Processed Food Trade Concordance

Walter B. Epps and J. Michael Harris

Introduction

This concordance converts a product-based classification system for reporting processed food exports and imports to an industry-based system. The result is a self-contained reference for use in statistical and analytical work where exports and imports of individual products and industry of origin must be jointly evaluated.

The Standard Industrial Classification system (SIC) and the Harmonized System are the industry- and product-based systems that underlie the concordance. The concordance was designed to reduce the mass of detail of the volumes that set forth the definitions, code numbers, and other provisions of the SIC and Harmonized systems while retaining sufficient information for identifying kind and form of processed food products industry by industry. These systems are discussed in greater detail below. Some characteristics of the concordance follow; the concordance itself is then presented.

The concordance has been used to tabulate bilateral trade in processed food of the United States and its 200 trading partners. That summary is available as an Economic Research Service electronic data product, "Processed Food Trade," Order #92016. The concordance was applied also to prepare a statistical bulletin on quarterly trade in processed food of 49 food-processing industries and each U.S. trading partner, scheduled for release early in 1995. Also in preparation is an electronic processed food trade data base, to become available June 1995.

Industry and Product Classification Systems

Standard Industrial Classification System

The Standard Industrial Classification system (SIC) is a Federal classification system that assigns establishments to groups based on establishments' principal economic activity. The SIC system underlies all establishment-based Federal economic statistics classified by industry. Developed by a technical committee under the authority of the Office of Management and Budget, the SIC system was designed to facilitate the collection, tabulation, presentation, and analysis of data on establishments and to promote uniformity and comparability in its presentation.

Under the SIC system, establishments or plants that produce similar products, use similar processes, or provide similar services are assigned the same two-digit code number. The establishments that process food and related products constitute SIC 20 under this system. Particular kinds of food processors are differentiated by additional code numbers. For example, processors of meat and related products are denoted by SIC 201. Within this subgroup, plants of specialized producers are further differentiated. For example, poultry processors are designated by SIC 2015. The four-digit SIC code is the system's lowest level of disaggregation, and the collection of establishments or plants under a particular four-digit SIC code is commonly called an industry. Table 1 lists and describes the 49 food processing industries. The 1987 Standard Industrial Classification Manual contains details of the SIC system for all U.S. industries.

The Harmonized System

The Harmonized System (HS) is a classification system for all goods traded internationally. This system was designed to replace individual nations' systems with commonly accepted nomenclature and descriptions of traded goods. The United States adopted the Harmonized System in 1989. The Harmonized Tariff Schedule of the United States (HTS) is the legal text that sets forth product descriptions and code numbers, rules of interpretation, article provisions, and other matters pertaining to participation of the United States in the Harmonized System convention as applied to merchandise classification for rate of duty and statistical purposes.

The Harmonized System assigns products unique 10-digit code numbers based on form and processing methods. For example, fresh, chilled, or frozen whole turkeys are designated by one code number but fresh, chilled, or frozen cuts of turkey by another, since their forms differ. The first six digits of each product's code number are the same for all countries. Remaining digits differentiate domestic standards.

Processed Food Trade Concordance

The processed food trade concordance joins two systems, pairing each of 2,150 processed food products classified according to the international Harmonized convention with a corresponding domestic industry among the 49 designated by the SIC scheme. The pairing criterion is conformity of the Harmonized System's product's description to establishment activity and product line of the SIC system. For example, fresh or chilled veal carcasses have been assigned to Meat Packing (SIC 2011), the industry in which establishments slaughter and process cattle, hogs, sheep, lambs, and calves.

Table 2 lists the pairings in numerical sequence by SIC industry code and thereunder by HS code, with accompanying product descriptions. These product descriptions are abbreviated versions of the lengthier nomenclature found in the HTS. They are identical to those used by the Bureau of the Census in its import and export trade reports and are retained here for their brevity and ease of comparison with Census reports. Abbreviated most often are weights, volumes, processing methods, and product form. For example, the volume measure "1 liter" may be spelled out or it may appear as "1 l" or "1 lit." Similarly, various abbreviations are used for processing methods such as "preserved," "sweetened" and "powdered." Appearing frequently also are modifiers such as "whether or not," variously abbreviated, and "not elsewhere specified or indicated," abbreviated "nesoi." (See the Glossary of Selected Abbreviations appendix.)

Some product descriptions also contain information about tariffs or other trade regulations. The trade part of a product's description has one or more of these elements: (1) a reference to "quota," "note," "heading," or "chapter," (2) dates, (3) a 4-digit number, and (4) an 8-digit number. The HTS has detailed explanations of applicable notes, chapter references, code numbers, and product descriptions. For example, a citation of the 4-digit code 0105 refers to the heading of chapter 1 of the HTS that covers live poultry by variety, units of quantity, and rates of duty. Eight-digit numbers such as 99045020 refer to sections of Chapter 99 of the HTS that cover modification of trade agreement legislation and import restrictions of Section 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act. "Note" refers to applicable provisions so numbered in the HTS. These notes contain extensive detail on such matters as exemptions, treatment of products of insular possessions, eligibility for special tariff treatment, and commingling of goods. Chapter numbers alone refer to an entire chapter in the HTS. For example, chapter 1 refers to live animals (and to accompanying coverage and exclusions of the term) in the HTS.

The assignment of products to industries warrants some qualifications: Sausages, cured meats, and related products have been assigned to SIC 2011, Meat Packing, rather than to SIC 2013, Sausage and Other Prepared Meat Products. Both industries produce many of the same processed sausage products, the distinction being that SIC 2013 establishments buy the carcasses they use from outside provisioners, while SIC 2011 establishments slaughter and process on their own account. Since the Harmonized System does not distinguish provisioner source of raw material to be processed, sausage and related products were paired with Meat Packing, although some imported and exported sausages originate in plants that buy carcasses from provisioners.

A final qualification concerns some seafood products. Harmonized System descriptions of a number of mollusk products do not distinguish among fresh chilled, dried, salted, or brine processes. In those instances, each product was assigned to SIC 2092, Prepared Fresh or Frozen Fish and Seafoods.
